PERSPECTIVE

French thinker, Voltaire once said that “the more things change the more things stay the same.” This principle also holds true for institutions of higher learning. They are predicated on the idea of change—that ideas are continually expanding and demand exploration. Yet, every year students graduate as a new class begins; professors lecture from the same podiums. Universities then become an amalgamation of change coupled with stability.

For Lipscomb University, the 2005-2006 year represents such a moment. The university inaugurated its seventeenth president. Seventeen faculty and staff, some of whom have molded the university for thirty years, retired. The Ezell Center was completed, as new trees were planted campus-wide. To document this moment of Lipscomb’s history, the Backlog staff has taken special care to chronicle the exciting campus transformations. Events, not usually covered, have been given special attention. Thus, this moment is represented throughout the pages as we reflect on a different perspective.

EDITOR’S NOTE: Student pictures are arranged by dorms and by day student.

different experiences

Experience (n) 1. To obtain a thing or object; to contemplate ideas or emotions.
2. Involvement in events through which the participant gains knowledge or skill.

A college experience affords students many opportunities to expand what they know. Part of broadening one's experiences is learning new things and getting to know more people. Throughout this year, there have been many opportunities in which the Lipscomb community can do both. Events like the International Square Fair and the Salon des Independents afford the community such an avenue of exploration. These events allowed the community to learn about not only each other but the broader community around them.

LIGHTING OF THE GREEN

The Lighting of the Green marked the beginning of the holidays for the Lipscomb community. Faculty, staff, and students worked long hours to complete preparations, including planting a forty foot tree. Several hundred children and adults enjoyed meeting Kris Kringle and visiting the Charles Dickens' scenes. The David Lipscomb Elementary, Middle, and High School and University Choruses, performed with Amy Grant. President Lowry then presented a donation to Youth Encouragement Services to help feed 150 families.

On November 4, Alpha Phi Chi hosted Lipscomb's 2nd annual Anteater's Ball. Members performed numbers reminiscent of STOMP. All proceeds from the two productions went to L1fe Revolution to build a school for children. The previous summer, several people from this service group traveled to Africa and learned a great deal about the work of One Life Revolution. During the event, Alpha Phi Chi raised awareness about the AIDS epidemic.

The Multicultural Association, under the leadership of Co-Presidents Ludine McWhinney and Luciana Leon, hosted the annual International Square Fair on April 14. With the theme, "Take A Little Trip," the community "traveled" to several different countries to hear music and to taste food from different cultures. Egypt, Germany, Scotland, the United Kingdom, and Jamaica were among the countries represented.

STUDENT ART COMPETITION

Salon des Independents, held April 4-8, showcased student art. Inspired by 19th Century movements like the Realists and Impressionists, students decided to redesign the competition by including art which challenged convention. A large white tent housed the pieces as guests enjoyed refreshments, floral arrangements, and classical music. The show, modeled after the Salons, featured both the work of students and their Youth Encouragement Services art students.

The Art Student Association featured artist Shane Neal, a 1991 Lipscomb alumnus. Neal, a renowned portrait painter, did a rendering of former President Steve Flatt. Lipscomb also welcomed two guest speakers, Ena Heller and the Reverend Ethan Acres. Both Heller, curator of the Museum of Biblical Arts, and Ethan Acres participated in the 100 Artists See God at Cheekwood Botanical Gardens and Museum of Art. The series showed different artists perception of the divine. Students from Vanderbilt, Belmont, and Lipscomb University participated in a class based on this exhibit.

BATTLE OF THE BOULEVARD

different*strengths*

Strength (n): the state of being powerful 2: having the ability to achieve a certain goal 3: ability to last

Lipscomb athletes showed the nation and the Nashville community its ability to perform both on the field or court and in the classroom. The men's Basketball team upset Belmont in overtime, sending the Bruins down the Boulevard in one of the season's most stunning performances. They faced the Kentucky Wild Cats, former back-to-back National Championship winners, at Rupp Arena. The Softball team opened Draper Diamond with a thrilling game. Both the men's and women's cross country teams ranked top in their division. With several pre-med majors, these athletes prove to be formidable both on and off the track.

different*callings*

Calling (n): an action or duty which requires one's time and effort 2: a path which one feels chosen to explore ex: profession, career, ministry, etc

Lipscomb University is fortunate to have many faculty and staff members who serve campus. From the English Department to the Physics Lab, professors challenge their students with new ideas and forge paths in their own fields by doing cutting-edge research. Staff members help this community to grow by keeping apace with changes. The entire Lipscomb family is grateful for each faculty and staff member's service.

BIBLE AND MINISTRY

Dr. Terry Briley
Dean

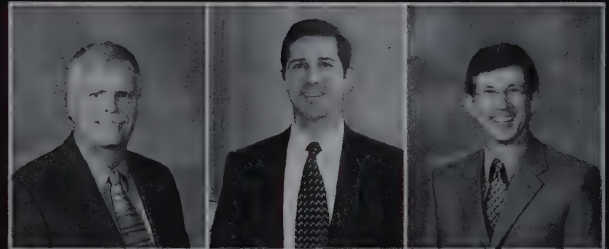

The College of Bible and Ministry seeks not only to equip a student with essential Biblical knowledge but to challenge them with Christ's teaching, making them aware of Christ's radical discipleship. Professors both mentor students and encourage them to become mentors themselves by ministering to those who are less fortunate. David Lipscomb once wrote, "Teaching the word of God is made an essential part, indeed, of the essence of the Christian religion." The college answers this challenge by teaching daily Bible classes, leading University Bible, and organizing Chapel.

The College of Business has a two-pronged approach to educating its future business leaders: give students a universal body of business knowledge and couple that understanding with practical, finely tuned skills. With this approach, the college also equips its students with a broad liberal arts component, helping to make them well-rounded. The departments of accounting, management, finance and economics, and marketing challenge these bright young leaders with their faculty's example and their demanding academic program.

CHRISTIAN BUSINESS LEADER OF THE YEAR

Lipscomb University named David Scobey, CEO of the Bell South Corporation, the 2005 Christian Business Leader of the Year. In his acceptance speech, Scobey told the audience about encouraging his employees to do their best. If they reached a set goal, he would go sky diving. A year later, Scobey found himself harnessed 15,000 feet above the earth's surface. The thing to be learned from that experience was not "next year let the employees jump from a jet" but was "trust in your Creator enough that you let go of what you know and trust God to take the lead," as Scobey noted.

Under the leadership of Dr. Candice McQueen, the Department of Education has taken its place among the best in Tennessee for preparing teachers to serve learners of all ages. The college, as a whole, continues to prepare women and men for lifelong service by offering degrees in communication, family and consumer sciences, kinesiology, education and social work and sociology. She has also been responsible for teaching many of the bibliographic instruction classes and for enhancing that program substantially.

Bill Goree
Professor of Bible
25 years

Though Bill Goree is a former football lineman with a booming voice, Bill's gentle and kind spirit has endeared him to generations of students. He has patiently served as an advisor for many of our students, but he is perhaps best known through his Marriage and the Christian Home class.

Seth Carmody
Professor of Business Administration
22 years

Seth Carmody has a genuine concern for Lipscomb students. He is always willing to volunteer for a project, and he frequently leads university-wide committees. Seth helped bring the Department of Business Administration into the computer era. He allowed faculty to sit in on his courses so they could become familiar with computers. He is constantly helping someone with a computer-related problem. Seth frequently taught overloads, demonstrating a willingness to help the department and college whenever needed.

Larry Griffith
Professor of Music
29 years

Larry Griffith came to Lipscomb in 1977. His first duties included teaching music theory, private voice and directing the Chorale and later the A Cappella Singers. Additional courses that Dr. Griffith taught were vocal pedagogy, vocal literature and diction, vocal methods, choral conducting, and music appreciation. He served as department chair from 1997 to 2000. He received the David Laine Memorial Travel Allowance to attend music festivals in Africa.

Hugh Daniel
Associate Professor of Business Administration
19 years

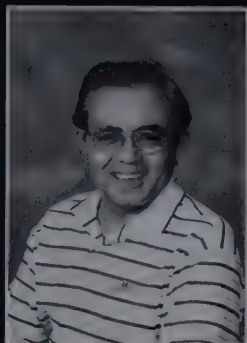

Hugh Daniel came to Lipscomb in 1987 after serving in the military, working for General Electric, and being a faculty member of several different academic institutions. While on the Lipscomb faculty he has been the primary instructor for macroeconomics, national income analysis, and operations management. During his time here, Daniel has retained his enthusiasm for economics and quality management. A special characteristic of his teaching has been his emphasis on the application of statistics and calculus to the subjects he has taught.

Beverly Langford
Administrative Assistant,
Career Development Center
18 years

Beverly Langford has been a hidden jewel at Lipscomb University. As the Administrative Assistant of the Career Development Center, Beverly has helped countless students prepare their resumes, search for jobs, and prepare for interviews. Many of these students she taught when she was a teacher at Crieve Hall Church of Christ preschool, and then she continues to help these same students prepare for life after Lipscomb. She has assisted hundreds of area employers, from big companies to neighbors needing students for odd jobs, as they search for the right student to meet their needs.

17 UNIVERSITY RETIREES

Tony Lingbawan
Chemistry Department

George O'Connor
Professor of Physics and Engineering Science
13 years

Dr. O'Connor came to Lipscomb in 1993 after owning a business for 25 years. He has been a cornerstone for the planning and launching of the Raymond B. Jones School of Engineering. At one time or another, he has taught almost every course in the Electrical and Computer Engineering Department. He served as department chair from the beginning of the program until 2005.

Gerald Moore
Professor of Music
32 years

Gerald Moore came to Lipscomb in 1970 and he taught music theory and directed choral ensembles, most especially the Chorale. He left Lipscomb in 1977 but returned in 1981 to resume his teaching duties. His well-known ensemble, the Early Music Consort, began as a recorder ensemble of eight and has blossomed into a thirty-member group that specializes in Renaissance and ethnic music and has a large following on and off campus. One of Dr. Moore's talents is arranging which he puts into practice in his work with the Jazz Vocal Ensemble.

Linda Roberson
Professor of Biology
31 years

Linda Roberson has taught for almost 32 years in the Biology Department and is an outstanding teacher and mentor. She has helped develop an outstanding and high quality pre-med program at Lipscomb. Over her years of service, she has served on numerous faculty committees including serving as chair of the Pre-Med Committee. She has been the faculty advisor to the Pre-Med Club and has been a mentor to literally hundreds of students. Honors include receiving two Outstanding Teacher of the Year Awards, the Baker Summer Research Award, an Outstanding Advisory of the Year award.

Douglas Morris
Associate Professor of English
30 years

Including a year at the high school, Dr. Douglas Morris has taught English at Lipscomb for 30 years. 22 years

Margie started working at Lipscomb in 1984, and has worked in many different offices around campus, including Admissions, the Registrar's Office, the College of Arts and Humanities, and the Department of Art. Margie knows so much about who does what jobs on campus, that (for a while at least) the central operator would call her to determine where to direct an incoming phone call.

Mike Moss
Professor of Bible
23 years

Mike Moss is a fine scholar and an enthusiastic teacher. He has stepped up and filled a number of important roles within the College of Bible and Ministry, including department chair and director of the graduate school. He led the way in raising the credibility of our graduate program and in increasing the number of students in the college.

Fletcher Srygley
Professor of Physics
33 years

Fletcher Srygley joined the Department of Physics and Engineering in 1973 and has taught most of the courses in the department. He especially has taken interest in providing an excellent learning experience for students in the pre-med physics course. Fletcher has been a crucial part of Lipscomb's physics program. The Landiss Lecture Series had a riveting year with appearances by both Constance Fulmer and Suzanne Marris. Morris P. Landiss, for whom the Lecture Series is named, taught Dr. Constance Fulmer, professor at Pepperdine University and Edith Simcox scholar. Fulmer's presentation marked a special time for the lecture series since she was the last of Dr. Landiss' students to present. Also, her research, conducted at the Bodleian Library, made new insights into 18th century British literature.

Suzanne Marris, long-time Eudora Welty friend and scholar, presented her revolutionary biography of Welty. Marris examined unpublished letters, only recently released by the Welty estate. Marris found that the author's life had been vastly misrepresented. Welty, argued Marris, was a cosmopolitan and a political activist. Dr. Dana Chamblee-Carpenter introduced Marris while Michael Kreyling, nationally renowned Welty scholar, attended.

REMEMBERING THE LIFE OF MARY MORRIS

Dr. Mary Morris

Dr. Mary Morris founded Lipscomb's Character Counts! program in 2000 to encourage both the city and communities at-large. The program developed curriculum for Metro schools in which children learned the six pillars of character: respect, responsibility, citizenship, trustworthiness, fairness, caring. With the assistance of former Governor Whitfield Dunn, Character Counts! expanded to several other Tennessee schools. A special branch was also designed to help police officers and business executives make better, more informed ethical decisions.

(Above) After a courageous battle with cancer, Dr. Mary Morris died on Friday, September 30, 2005. A special memorial service was held during chapel in Allen Arena the following week.

BACKLOG

Row 2 (Left to Right): Aimee Wells, Beth Quarles, John Lominac, Matt Foreman

Backlog editors spend a lot of time doing work for the University's yearbook in the office. They are honored to participate in the University's life. The pictures reflect times in the office, the Provost's Award Reception, Backlog Presentation day, the Herff-Jones Yearbook Conference and a few with our faculty advisor Dr. Randy Bouldin.

Lauren Farris

Being the editor of the Lipscomb Backlog has been nothing less than a wild ride. From first having 4 editors, to 3 editors, and finally to having an Editor-in-Chief and Associate Editor, one learns the true meaning of dedication, teamwork, and dependability. When first going into this project, one is blind to the impact it will make on life. This book's production is a twelve-month process: once one is finished, the next book must begin. Furthermore, publishing a quality book demands tremendous amounts of time and attention. An editor has to spend hours in the office and attend almost every event. For instance, this year we designed layout during Christmas; during Spring Break, we prepared for the Inauguration; during the Inauguration, we documented every event; during the summer months, we spent hours working on proofs in order to give Lipscomb a great book.

From the five rounds of proofs on those eight pages to the frustration of finding more pictures, this 2006 yearbook has been a true challenge. This book has been designed to reflect the Lipscomb community's life during the 05-06 year. It abstractly reflects a blueprint by having pictures that resemble blocks and by having lines that connect those pictures much like a blueprint would. We chose the theme "A Different Perspective" because of the University's changes such as the new Ezell Center and inaugurating our 17th President.

From the early 2003 fall semester until late summer in 2006, I have journeyed from knowing little about how a university functions--much less than how books are published--to knowing how to develop several large publications at the same time. This opportunity has given me the chance to grow and has been extremely valuable both socially and educationally. I have learned much more about organizing, meeting deadlines, watching ideas become realities, and preserving this University's history and traditions.

One of the greatest feelings of being an editor is being able to hand over the reins to the next group and knowing that will do a great job. Brittany and John, I wish you the best in your new journey as editors. It will be a bumpy ride, but you will soar to greater heights. As my time as editor concludes, I would like to give a few "shout outs" to those that have made these past 3 years a delight. To the fellow basement dwellers, Kim, Amber, Will, Chris, Janelle, Katera, and Kyle, thanks for helping me fight off the roaches and for your guidance. I will miss the Christmas Break insanity of long hours in one tiny room and being able to walk down the hall when I needed to ask the millionth question. I will treasure the opportunities of getting to photograph various people from Dr. Lowry to the Titans players. However, none will be as memorable as photographing the First Lady of Sudan. To Mary Harris, our Herff Jones representative, thanks for allowing us to call you with all sorts of crazy questions and allowing us to leave you silly voicemails. To Teresa Williams, thanks for always being there for us whenever we needed office supplies and a morale boost. To Mr. Prewitt, thanks for going to bat for us on numerous occasions and always being a mentor. To Randy Bouldin, "Boss," thanks for rattling cages, listening to extremely long and detailed voicemails, fighting for color, getting staff members more scholarship money, and being a mentor. To Mary Emily, thanks for catching all of my spelling errors and always showing us the little details which make a quality book. Thanks for looking over those 8 pages from the Inauguration. To Rachel, you have been more than an assistant editor to me: you have been a true friend and sister. This experience would not have been the same without your help. Even with our thinking caps on, you are my better half when it comes to yearbook work. December is going to be bittersweet, but we're going to remember our college days as ones that were fun and most of all crazy. Thanks so much for everything.

Rachel Reed

When first becoming associate editor of the Backlog, I hadn't a clue about what the job entailed. Producing a yearbook is a full-time job, requiring its staff to produce high-quality, consistent work throughout the year. Every event has to be documented and well photographed. Editors learn how the campus works, who to contact for information, and how to balance producing a publication while attending classes. With two years and lots of experience behind us, working on a book has taught me not only those lessons but also has afforded me the opportunity to participate and preserve a moment in the university's life.

The real joy has been getting to work with our wonderful staff and faculty sponsors. To Lauren, thank you for all the time you put into designing layout and for always giving it your all. You have a kind spirit and tremendous amounts of determination. Thanks for dragging me to Disney and for your late night talks. It has been a joy getting to call you both a friend and a sister. To Mary Harris, thank you for your wonderful smile and caring heart. To Mary Emily Bouldin, thank you for helping us develop the book and for all the time you put in yourself. I have enjoyed coming over to talk with you and appreciate the dedication you have. To Dr. Randy Bouldin, thank you for giving us the chance to work with you. We could not have asked for more in an advisor. Your support and guidance have been invaluable. Thank you for everything!

The Honors Program strives to challenge students by encouraging them to conduct independent research and also to develop the ability to ask tough, well-informed questions. Classes are kept small, while professors are chosen for their ability to stimulate critical thinking. Enrichment activities, such as hearing the symphony and seeing museum exhibits, are scheduled to broaden the student's experience. To graduate with an honors distinction, a student must complete 24 hours of honors work and compose and defend a thesis which concentrates on work within his/her major.

DIFFERENT FACES

CAMPUS MINISTRY

different*faces*

Face (n): the front of the head from the chin to the forehead 2: an expression which reveals the person's mood

A myriad of colors compose each face, making that visage unique. Like wise, each person on campus has a different viewpoint, a distinct set of experiences. All of these unique backgrounds merge on campus as students exchange ideas and get to know one another. This experience affords friends which people will have for a lifetime.

Elam Hall, housing 340 ladies, underwent massive remodeling. All the carpeting was replaced and the lobby received a new coat of paint. These changes merely added to the community found within Elam's doors. Leann Clower makes a special effort every semester to make each Elam girl feel at home. The dorm highlighted the holidays by having Halloween bashes and Christmas parties.

*Sam Smith

Sewell Hall owns prime real estate at Lipscomb by being in the campus' center. The dorm invites all students to benefits such as the '05 Fish Fry, which raised money for Hurricane Katrina relief. Sewell Hall is the smaller of the two men's dorms by housing close to 160 men. With this small space, resident Sam Smith along with his RA's are able to provide a comfortable and amiable environment for all those who live there.

CAMPUS MINISTRY

David Clayton and Adam Stunkle, both Lipscomb alumni, lead Stone Water Ministry, Lipscomb's campus ministry. They encourage and minister to students by coordinating events which seek to build community with fellow students, with those in the greater Nashville community, and most importantly with God. One of the most popular aspects of the Campus Ministry comes in the form of Friday Night Activities. These activities seek to connect students to one another. Several of this year's events included the Brickyard, the Running of the Bison, Beach Party in Bison Square, and the Death of Dodgeball. Moreover, the ministry is committed to teaching students to be committed to Christ. Weekly events such as the Offering, Mondays at the Mission, Green Street Homeless Ministry, Sanctuary and various other opportunities all serve as a catalyst for spiritual growth outside of the classroom. Ultimately Lipscomb's Campus Ministry strives to provide opportunities that will stretch the student's faith, while drawing them closer to God.

differentsteps

Step: (n) any series of acts 2: a level which denotes a period of rest and support before moving onward ex: rung, stair step 3: 2: (v) to move a short distance

The word "step" denotes a change whether that change be a time for reflection or for pursuing a goal. The Study Abroad program and the campus-wide service projects are some of the best, yet most challenging opportunities for such growth. The Study Abroad program has expanded to include the Switzerland program, a two week trip in May. Lipscomb actively served not only the Nashville community but also the nation at-large. Several groups participated in clean-up efforts in areas devastated by hurricanes Katrina and Rita. All of these experiences broadened each participant's perspective

STUDY ABROAD VIENNA

The Lipscomb Vienna program gives the opportunity to study in one of the world's most culturally rich and diverse cities. For three months, students can use Vienna as a base to explore Europe and see the Eiffel Tower or the British Museums. The 2005 Vienna group had the special privilege of traveling with Dr. David Lawrence who studied Medieval and Reformation history and with Dr. John Parker who studied Shakespeare. These professors gave insight into the Europe's century of changes.

STUDY ABROAD LONDON

The Lipscomb in London program allows students to live in one of the world's most cosmopolitan cities. For eight weeks in the summer, these students can either take classes or get an internship while learning to navigate city streets and the Tube. Past students have enjoyed working for the Labour Party. The city also affords wonderful opportunities to experience part of history. Students can see ancient artifacts and famous artwork by visiting the British Museum and the British Library.

OXFORD

Studying at the University of Oxford allows students to learn with some of the world's brightest scholars. These students then navigate Bodleian Library's expansive collection and can cull through Medieval manuscripts. Both challenging and inspiring, Oxford demands excellence, determination and, most of all, dedication. During 2006, Lipscomb University sent Drew Denton and Rachel Reed to the Oxford program. Past participants include Austin Church and Emily Choate.

SWITZERLAND

In order to broaden a student's perspective, the College of Business offered a new course entitled, "Global Business, Culture and Travel Experience," which took place in Switzerland. From May 11-21, students met and conversed with executives at seven global companies, including Nocarits Pharmaceutical, the Swiss National bank, and Camille Bloch Chocolate Manufacturer. Switzerland was chosen because of its unique location. The course goal was to make students more savvy in a global market and give them opportunities to integrate faith in business practices.

SPRING BREAK MISSIONS

Lipscomb Missions, with over six hundred participants during Spring Break 2006, sent out more students, faculty, and staff members than ever before. A total of nine United States destinations and twenty-one international cities were served.

These students did everything from tutoring inner-city children to building radio repeaters in Honduras. These experiences broadened each student's perspective and challenged them to serve in new and distinctly different ways.

HURRICANE RELIEF

In late August, Hurricane Katrina developed into a Category 5 hurricane off the Gulf Coast's warm waters, becoming the sixth strongest in U.S. history to make landfall. Katrina, doing an estimated 81 billion dollars worth of damage, devastated New Orleans, Louisiana as well as other cities in Mississippi and Alabama.

In response to this massive destruction, the Office of Campus Life lead a team of 100 students, faculty, and friends on a disaster relief trip to the Gulf Coast to package supplies for distribution and to work on debris removal. Members helped clear rubble, move downed trees, and minister. On one trip, the Gulf Coast Bible Camp in Shipman, Mississippi hosted these Lipscomb participants. These volunteers served in Gulfport, Pascagula, Long Beach, Moss Point, and Biloxi.

HURRICANE RELIEF

Anna Britt

We worked with one family, an older man and his son, who were extremely appreciative of our efforts. While we worked with them, we received rain from Rita, the next storm passing the coast. One of the family's neighbors felt sorry for us because we were wet. This lady took all of the girls who needed bathroom facilities back to her house, where she took our wet shirts and gave us dry ones from her own clothes. We were helping people who had lost so much, yet this lady was giving to us from her own belongings. These people were not willing simply to accept our help as their just dues: they wanted to give something back to us and took every opportunity to do so.

Cheana Tagatac

I witnessed beautiful examples of human resiliency. The stories that the people in MS told me were incredible, and the devastation and loss they experienced was unbelievable. Yet, through everything, the people in MS held God's hand and blessed His name. The families praised God with their words and their trust. It was amazing! They had lost most of their earthly belongings, but instead of being bitter they realized that their earthly belongings really didn't matter so much. They were so optimistic. They were also very grateful for the help that we were able to provide. You could see the gratitude in their eyes! Personally, it felt so good to be able to minister to these people and to be able to give to them without asking for something in return, to truly be the Hands of God. What a blessing this trip was!

Kim Chaudoin

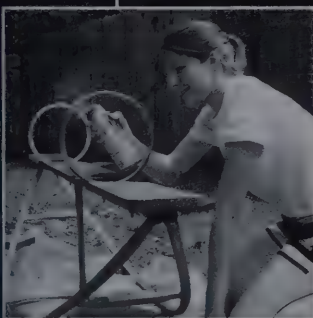

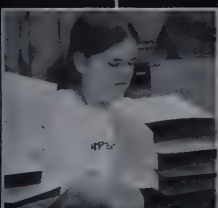

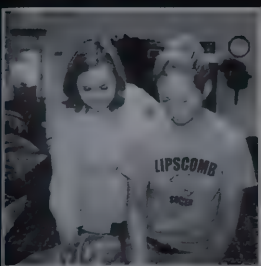

When I volunteered to accompany a student group to the Katrina Relief effort, I intended to cover the event for our campus publications. I expected to "get my hands dirty" a little bit, but thought I was mostly going to "work." I was very surprised at how much I personally gained from this trip. I gained a better appreciation for our students while watching them work tirelessly — for 12 and 13 hour days, sometimes in the pouring rain — to help make life a little better for those folks. It made me very proud to be a part of Lipscomb and reminded me of why I choose to work here.

I also learned a valuable life lesson. Most of our job was helping clean up houses and yards from the debris, which was strewn everywhere. As I hauled load after load of destroyed dishes, clothes, books, and toys--among other things--I realized how fleeting "stuff" is. I was dragging people's lives to the curb for the garbage truck to haul away. Years of stuff was destroyed and put on the curb for the garbage just like that. Yet, the people we helped were just happy to be alive. It was an extremely important lesson for me not to get so caught up in all the "stuff" that I have. It actually inspired me to go home and get rid of a lot of my own junk. It has also made me not be as attached to material things. Hurricane Katrina Relief was an unforgettable experience.

SERVICE DAY

Over 600 faculty, staff, and students participated in Service Day. Marking its fourth year on the Lipscomb campus, Service Day afforded participants the opportunity to improve other communities and to understand other people's needs. These volunteers visited more than 30 locations, which included Agape, Carestone Assisted Living, Churches of Christ Disaster Relief, Feed America First, Habitat for Humanity, and the Humane Society.

different*styles*

Style (n): a means of expression 2: a distinctive mark or taste identifying one with a certain mindset 3: a name

Social clubs afford students an opportunity to be a part of a unique community. Each having a distinct style, social clubs allow participants to get to know other people on campus and to build strong relationships within the group. Before the fun begins, students make bids to join the social club of their choice. Pledges may wear large cow costumes, carry around gnomes, or dress up like a giraffe. Once they have pledged, members can participate in events such as Formal, Semi-Formal, Cheap Date, Hay Ride, Luau, and Swap Date.

THE PERSPECTIVE BEHIND THE SHOW

Singarama is a variety show directed, performed, and hosted by students and is comprised of three groups. During the performances, these groups are judged in various categories including theme, music, choreography, and costumes. The group with the most points after the Saturday evening performance wins.

"It is impossible to measure on an individual basis the sense of accomplishment, the enjoyment, the friendships, and the willingness to give something of value to the university that can be attributed to Singarama," Sarah Keith Gamble said. "It has, over time, been our most popular student activity." Since its debut in 1964, more than 14,500 students have participated in Singarama. "Lights, Camera, Action!" was the 2006 theme. The 2006 year also marked the show's 43 Anniversary. Singarama legends Gamble and James Brown helped to make the '06 performances some of the most exciting and enjoyable ones on record.

DEATH OF DODGEBALL

This spring, Campus Ministry hosted "Death of Dodgeball" in the Square. Campus Ministries built a cage and brought out a casket to create the proper atmosphere. Students, who divided into teams, dressed in bizarre attire to play a last game. Dean Scott McDowell and President Randy Lowry joined in the festivities. President Lowry played three different games.

Community: (n) the assembling of a group of people 2) a deeper relationship which signifies a sharing of values, emotions, and thoughts which acts to unite people along lines of commonality

The Lipscomb community is not merely composed of the students and faculty who participate in the academic environment. Instead, the community extends beyond these lines to include the staff members who keep the campus running smoothly, the administrators who address tough issues, and the alumni who take their education into the working world. Events like Homecoming and the Inauguration of President Lowry allowed this community to become renewed in each other's presence.

HOMECOMING

This year's homecoming festivities, held February 10-11, blended many Lipscomb traditions while binding the entire Lipscomb community together. The events began with students camping in Shanty Town in anticipation for the Homecoming Weekend. Students then ran in the second annual Running of the Bison. President Randy Lowry named Mary Nelle Chumley alumnus of the year. The weekend concluded as Brittany Pierce was crowned Homecoming Queen and Anna Rose Anderson was named Miss Lipscomb.

HOMECOMING

Every homecoming affords both students and alumni the opportunity to become reacquainted with their roots. This homecoming proved to be no different. The Bisonettes, reuniting for the homecoming game, celebrated years of cheering for Lipscomb. Dr. Lowry, experiencing the parade for the first time, saw the campus in a different light. The Relics then ended the evening by singing many favorite tunes.

LIPSCOMB'S FIRST LADY

The First Lady's Perspective:

When we inaugurated Dr. Randy Lowry as president, Lipscomb University received a wonderful fringe benefit - Rhonda Lowry. With her wit, intelligence, and energy, Rhonda Lowry promises to be an influential presence in the Lipscomb community. But who is our new first lady? Mrs. Lowry uses the ocean to express the essence of her life. "[In a wave,] there is a lot of rising, a lot of falling, a lot of pulling from above, a lot of settling in the water. . . There is also a lot of constant motion and force. I would hope that my life would reflect a sense of power, a sense of constancy, and continual movement within guidelines."

Just as a wave goes through transitions, Mrs. Lowry, herself, has experienced many changes which have shaped and formed her perspectives and her faith. Rhonda Lowry went to Pepperdine University after growing up on a Missouri farm. She planned to study church instrumental music with her abilities as a pianist, but found that Pepperdine did not offer a major in church instrumental music. While at Pepperdine she met Randy Lowry. Remembering their first day of friendship, she reflects, "Our first date was to Disneyland. . . I had four tickets, thinking I am going to college with other students who have never been to Disneyland. I am walking around asking students if they would like to go--all the time Randy is following me. . . I thought he doesn't want to go to Disneyland—he has things to do. Finally, I turned around and asked him to go. So he says, I asked him out on our first date."

After completing their degrees, the Lowry's moved from California to Minnesota to Oregon and finally back to California. Even during these transitions, Mrs. Lowry notes, "My passion was always church education. I was always involved where we worshipped." After her youngest child began school, Mrs. Lowry read a flyer from Fuller Theological Seminary which stated, "Are you a woman who has just taken her child to school for the first day? Come to Fuller," and so she did. Rhonda Lowry decided to pursue her Master's of Divinity degree. In addition to being wife and mother, she once again became a student.

Attending Fuller did more than just change Lowry's life; it broadened her perspective of God. Mrs. Lowry notes, "[Fuller] started as a nondenominational seminary. Their idea was for an evangelical seminary where anyone was welcome to come as long as they professed the Lordship of Jesus Christ and the inspiration of scripture. . . From there, we discussed everything." This setting afforded her a unique but challenging opportunity. Mrs. Lowry explains, "We had to go to scripture and take off the rose colored glasses of our denominational teaching and ask, 'What is it really saying?' 'What does it mean in the 21st century?,' and 'What am I going to do about it.'" This experience represented a fundamental shift in how Mrs. Lowry viewed scripture: she came to view scripture as a place to look for spiritual transformation rather than merely looking for information.

While developing academically has been a key part of Mrs. Lowry's life, a considerable part of her ministry has always been caring for others. President Lowry recounted a time when his wife, in essence, became a mother to a little boy who spent a year in the Children's Hospital in California. More recently, Mrs. Lowry has cared for her brother, Robert, who has been living with ALS. (Editor's note: Robert died on June 2, 2006.)

For all the transitions that have marked Mrs. Lowry's life, she considers her children, John, Janet, and Melinda as the source of her greatest joy. John graduated from Pepperdine University. He and his wife, Melissa, are expecting their first child this fall. Janet is a Ph.D. student. Her husband Richmond is finishing up his Master's of Education and plans to study law. Melinda studies at Wheaton University, played on the National Championship winning soccer team, and was the spiritual captain of her team.

As Rhonda Lowry assumes her new role as Lipscomb's first lady, she once again will call on her energy, her passion, and her faith to transition into this next phase of service in her life.

The theme, "A Different Perspective," was chosen for this yearbook to represent the University's vast changes during the 2005-2006 academic year. Volume 85 of Lipscomb University's Backlog was printed by Herff-Jones Incorporated in Montgomery, Alabama. Mary Harris was Herff-Jones Representative and Dr. Randy Bouldin was Yearbook Staff advisor.

Each spread was designed with Adobe InDesign CS2. Layouts were created either by staff members using Adobe InDesign CS or were chosen from Herff-Jones predesigned layouts in "Your Layouts." The cover was designed by Lauren Farris, Backlog Editor-in-Chief.

A 1-inch line was used as a border with a 1-inch bar connecting most pictures. Pictures were submitted digitally and no hard copies were used. A 14% white drop shadow was used on pictures. A Cannon EOS Digital Rebel 6.3 Mega Pixels was used for digital pictures, made by the staff. There were 8,467 digital pictures made during the creation of the Backlog. Other pictures were taken by members of the Office of Communication and Creative Services of Lipscomb University, J. Christopher's Photography, and university students. Other photographers include Stacey Smith, Aimee Wells, Justin Gregory, Rachel Reed, Lauren Farris, Kyle Gregory, Anthony Estes, Margie Roder, and Karen Long. Copy was done by the Backlog staff.

The 2006 Backlog consisted of 224 black pages, with 2 signatures of color. 1,900 copies of the Backlog, Volume 85 were distributed to Lipscomb University Board of Trustees, students, faculty and staff members.
